CELTIC CONFERENCE IN CLASSICS MONTREAL, MCGILL UNIVERSITY AND UNIVERSITÉ DE MONTRÉAL JULY 19–22, 2017

From Bill Gladhill

Celtic Conference in Classics (www.celticconferenceclassics.com)

Since 1998 the Celtic Conference in Classics has rotated among universities in Britain, France and Ireland. This is the first year that the CCC will expand into North America. The CCC includes upwards of 20 panels on broad topics in Classics (Greco-Roman history, philosophy, literature, archaeology, reception) with roughly 15-20 presenters for each panel. Rather than small panels on many topics, the CCC allows each panel to explore fundamental questions in classical studies. Essentially, 20 large-scale conferences on major research topics in Classics are occurring simultaneously. It is recommended that scholars move between panels in order to shape interdisciplinary perspectives and approaches. Academic cross-fertilization is imperative. Specialist panels are open to experts from other subject-areas and scholars from different national traditions are encouraged to build international academic networks among their home institutions in order to foster future collaboration. The CCC is a democratic, inclusive organization and it invites scholars and students to discuss fundamental issues of Greco-Roman society and culture. The official languages of the CCC are French and English.

Conference Panels include

- Classical Literature and the Fragmentary
- Consciousness and Conscious in Late Antiquity
- Diplomacy in Ancient Greek Oratory and Historiography
- Identity in Greek Oratory
- Epic and Elegy
- Ethnicity and Imperialism
- New Approaches to Plato
- New Directions in Military History
- Popular Classics
- Reception of Ancient Drama
- Return to Philology
- The Alchemy of Myth in Medieval and Renaissance Culture

Please consult the website of the Conference for the full descriptions of the call for papers and other information. Undergraduate and graduate students are exempt from paying any registration fees.

CFP: ETHNICITY AND IMPERIALISM AT THE TIME OF THE ROMAN REPUBLIC
PANEL AT THE 10th CELTIC CONFERENCE IN CLASSICS
MONTREAL, JULY 19th–22nd 2917

From David Colwill

But they did wipe out the Etruscan existence as a nation and a people. However, this seems to be the inevitable result of expansion with a big E, which is the sole raison d'être of people like the Romans.

D.H. Lawrence, Etruscan Places, 1932 (1986 ed.), 31

When D.H. Lawrence wrote his Etrurian travelogue, he did so with an intuitive understanding that ethnicity and imperialism are entwined concepts. Much recent scholarship into the ancient world has looked into either ethnicity or imperialism in this period, but few have made the link between them explicit. While Mattingly (2013) has looked at some of these entwined factors for the Imperial period, his work remains an exception. The entwined concepts of ethnicity and imperial need further exploration in terms of their interactionism and mutual contingency.

The panel seeks to represent varying approaches from different national scholarly traditions to ethnicity and imperialism at the time of the Roman Republic through a series of thought-provoking papers. Neither imperialism nor ethnicity exist in a vacuum. As such, relevant cross-cultural studies from co-temporal imperial societies, particularly from Hellenistic, Punic, and Near Eastern studies, are encouraged, as are interdisciplinary approaches.

Applications dealing with aspects of the following are sought, although proposals on other relevant themes will be considered:

- The role of imperialism in the process of ethnogenesis through imposition or apposition to differences in power and/or intercultural contacts
- The ways in which imperialism may have been influenced by the ethnic social constructions from which they arose

- The role of imperialism in the destruction of ethnic groups
- Hermeneutical or heuristic approaches to understanding ethnicity and imperialism as mutually contingent

The panel will consist of 12–15 speakers giving papers of 35 minutes each, followed by 15 minutes for discussion. Shorter papers may also be accepted. Papers may be delivered in English or French.

Submissions for up to 200 words plus a short biography should be emailed to ColwillDJ1@Cardiff.ac.uk by the end of Wednesday 11th January 2017. Any informal inquiries are also welcome at the same address.
