[2] CCB Announcements / Annonces du BCÉA

FROM THE EDITOR
DU RÉDACTEUR

You will note that some deadlines are coming up very soon, especially the Doctoral Workshop in Epigraphy announced below in section [6]. I hoped to send this issue earlier, but it simply wasn't possible. Yet, to speed up things, I have left out some announcements that are not time sensitive. So, if you don't see your announcement, it's because it will be appear in the next issue.

Si vous avez des messages d'intérêt pour les membres de la Société, vous pouvez aussi les communiquer à l'administratrice de la page Facebook et du compte Twitter de la CAC/SCÉC. J'ai personnellement rejoint quelques centaines de classicistes sur Twitter pour les informer de l'atelier d'épigraphie mentionné ci-dessus et de la nouvelle date limite de soumission des résumés pour le prochain congrès de la Société.

TWELFTH CELTIC CONFERENCE IN CLASSICS

CfP: Song, Lament, Love: Harking Back to the Sounds of Elegy
University of Coimbra, 26–29 JUNE 2019

From Bill Gladhill

Submission deadline: 28 February 2019.

Panel coordinators:

Eva Anagnostou-Laoutides (Macquarie University, NSW): Eva.Anagnostou-Laoutides@mq.edu.au

Bill Gladhill (McGill University): charles.gladhill@mcgill.ca

Micah Myers (Kenyon College): myersm1@kenyon.edu

The nature of archaic Greek elegy and its performative culture, its interface with other Greek literary genres as well as its Hellenistic and Roman adaptation(s) have already commanded an impressive amount of scholarship. Despite, however, appreciating that the functions of elegy were hugely diversified early on (Nagy 2010; Barbantani 2018), despite overcoming the simplistic classification of elegies to subjective and objective (Cairns 1979; Murray 2010; Miller 2012), and even despite doubting Quintilian's criticism of Propertius as an obscure poet (Inst.Or.10.1.93), foundational questions on the origins, nature, and meaning(s) of Elegy remain unanswered. Elegy, one of the oldest Greek poetic genres, remains the most elusive.

Drawing on Karen Weisman's definition of post-classical elegy as "the framing of loss" (2010: 1) and on Horace's appreciation of elegy in connection with mourning and the Greek elegos (AP 75-8), a connection reflected on the lost genre of Roman female poetry called the nenia, the panel aims to reorient research and debates on elegy by focusing on its sounds – mimicked, described, or alluded to – and the emotions they evoke. This alternative perspective on elegy goes beyond generic and metric definitions, seeking instead to uncover the basic sounds (sighing, sobbing, groaning, muttering, etc.) which the Greeks and the Romans identified with elegiac concepts (e.g. love, death, loss) and to reflect on the cultural processes associated with them, especially memorialization and ritualization. By placing elegy in its original context, that of the lived, but unrecorded Greek and later Roman song culture (Habinek 2005; Sbardella 2018), we can reassess its association with Greco-Roman literary genres, all of whom place special emphasis on the sounds of love and death, as well as epigrams, funeral inscriptions and rhetoric. Furthermore, by shifting the methodological focus we can revisit elegy's connection with issues of gender, including the role and social ramifications of ancient female experience(s). The panel welcomes papers dealing with (but not limited to):

- How did lived, oral song culture influence Greek and/or Roman elegy?
- What methodologies can be used to retrieve oral song cultures from written texts, including elegy?

- Which sounds define the Greek/Roman elegiac experience and how are they represented in other genres?
- What are the emotional and psychological implications of the elegiac experience as the Greeks/Romans conceptualized it?
- What is the connection between Greek/Roman elegy and spirituality?
- How elegiac is Greek/Roman elegy?
- Is there a connection between Greek elegy and Near Eastern song cultures?
- How Roman is the Roman elegiac experience?

The panel hopes to broaden the discussion on elegy by situating it within the wider social and cultural contexts in which it developed. We invite papers on all aspects of Greek and Roman auditory culture as it pertains to expressing sentiments about love, death, loss, life and the afterlife in ancient literature and inscriptions. The central question this panel aims to address is the connection between ancient sound culture and the deeper psycho-social implications of elegy.

Each paper (25 minutes) will be followed by a 10-minute discussion. Abstracts must not exceed 300 words. The submission deadline for abstracts is 28th February 2019. Please include a short biography and specify your affiliation.

Submissions are to be sent to the following email address: hsonglamentlove@gmail.com.

Notification of acceptance will be given by 15th March 2019.

L'Institut canadien en Grèce sollicite les candidatures pour la bourse d'études Neda et Franz Leipen à Athènes, Grèce du 1er septembre 2019 au 31 mai 2020.

Le candidat doit être citoyen canadien, ou immigrant reçu, doit poursuivre des études avancées ou post-doctorales et doit avoir besoin de séjourner en Grèce.

En plus de ses études, le Boursier assistera le directeur adjoint de l'ICG dans le travail du bureau et de la bibliothèque (10 heures par semaine). On recommande donc une expérience antérieure en Grèce et au moins un peu de grec moderne.

Tout aspect des études helléniques, de l'antiquité jusqu'au moyen-âge, et n'importe quelle discipline académique peut servir de point focal des recherches du boursier; cependant une préférence sera accordée au candidat qui travaille dans le domaine de la sculpture grecque de l'époque classique jusqu'à l'époque hellénistique. Dans toute publication éventuelle de ses recherches conduites sous les auspices de cette bourse, le boursier reconnaîtra l'assistance de l'Institut canadien en Grèce ainsi que celle de la bourse d'études Neda et Franz Leipen.

Allocation de $9000, et logement à l'hôtellerie de l'ICG pendant le séjour.

Écrire avant le 1 Mars 2019, en incluant un curriculum vitae, une description du programme de recherche et trois lettres de recommandation à l'adresse ci-dessous.
